GOODING RAIL BILL PASSAGE IS DOUBTFUL

Opposition Forces Crystallizing in Senate; Most Roads Favor Bill

Measure Allows 30 Years for Payment of Debt at 4 1/2 Per Cent Rate

BULLETIN
Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The bill to prohibit railroads charging more for short hauls than for long hauls was proposed as an amendment to the pending rivers and harbors bill Monday by Senator Gooding, Republican, Idaho.

Washington—Discussion among members of the senate would seem to indicate that the proposed law sponsored by Senator Gooding of Idaho, Republican, whereby the railroads of America would be permitted to refund their indebtedness to the government will have a hard time getting through. Already the forces in opposition are crystallizing and while the senate steering committee made the measure the second on the list after rivers and harbors legislation is disposed of after the holiday recess, the question of passage depends on the aggressiveness of those who are sure to not be clear about the advantages of the bill for they think the strong roads should tend to pay off their debt while the weaker ones would hang on indefinitely. The idea of keeping some of the railroads so closely linked up with the government that some day the government might be compelled to take over weaker roads is being used as an argument against making the pathway of the railroads any easier in respect of the interest charges.

RAILROADS FAVOR BILL

Men like Senators Couzens of Michigan, and Howell of Nebraska, Republicans, are opposed to the bill. The majority of the railroads want to see the measure passed because it means that their indebtedness of $25,000,000 to the government will be carried for 30 years on an interest rate of 4 1/2 per cent, instead of 6 per cent as at present. This reduction in interest charges would diminish by some millions of dollars the annual expense of the railroads. Some railroad men—though the majority are not—think that the bill would diminish the advantages of the bill for they think the strong roads should tend to pay off their debt while the weaker ones would hang on indefinitely. The idea of keeping some of the railroads so closely linked up with the government that some day the government might be compelled to take over weaker roads is being used as an argument against making the pathway of the railroads any easier in respect of the interest charges.

POPE PIUS APPOINTS TWO NEW CARDINALS

Preconizes Bishops of Grand Rapids and Superior Before Sacred College

Rome—(AP)—Pope Pius held a secret consistory at the Vatican Monday with the participation of all the members of the sacred college residing in Rome, headed by Cardinal Bishop Vannutelli. The pontiff offered prayer and delivered his allocution, then, after receiving the consent of the members of the sacred college, appointed two new Italian cardinals, Giuseppe Gamba, archbishop of Turin, and Lorenzo Lauri, nuncio to Poland. He ended the ceremony by preconizing various bishops, many of whom had already been appointed by his predecessors. The preconized by the pope included Joseph Pinton, bishop of Grand Rapids and Theodore Reverman, bishop of Superior. Pope Pius enumerated events of rejoicing which occurred during the year, contrasting them with the sad and painful things which had occurred in various countries. "We cannot help denouncing once more the persecution which for many months has raged in Mexico with inhuman ferocity," the pontiff said.

WOMAN DIES, MAN IS SHOT IN QUARREL

Wife of Ingersoll Watchmaker, Once of Green Bay, Did Shooting, Claim

New York—(AP)—A love tangle and tragedy, involving a son-in-law of Robert G. Ingersoll, famous watchmaker, and Mrs. Robert Hawley Ingersoll, wife of the retired manufacturer of dollar watches, stirred fashionable Park-ave. Monday. Mrs. R. H. Ingersoll, 55, estranged wife of the manufacturer, was shot to death in her apartment on Park-ave. Sunday night, and Wallace M. Probasco, 60, son-in-law of Robert G. Ingersoll, was seriously injured. The Ingersoll families are not related. Mrs. R. H. Ingersoll was formerly Roberta Bannister of Green Bay, Col. Ingersoll died in 1899, at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. Probasco was held Monday in the prison ward of Bellevue hospital on a technical charge of homicide, but he and his wife claim that Mrs. Ingersoll shot him and killed herself through jealousy because of the other woman she returned to, but had endured for years. Probasco was shot twice through the chest and once through the right arm. TELEPHONED WIFE Probasco telephoned his wife after the shooting. She went to the apartment and found her husband on the floor beside a telephone. Mrs. Ingersoll's body was found on a bed in another room. She was clad in a pink dressing gown and wore jewels valued at $35,000. One hand clutched a revolver. Probasco, an advertising expert and general manager and director of the New Century Color Plate Co., Inc., said while lying on a hospital cot: "I told Mrs. Ingersoll Saturday that my wife and I were reconciled. Later in the day she telephoned me and came over at once. I went to her apartment determined to break with her for good. I was rather sorry for her but I left very happy for I was going back to my wife, whom I love."

WANTED TO END AFFAIR

Mrs. Ingersoll upbraided me when I came in, for my coolness toward her. I apologized and told her I wanted to have it over with that I was not going to see her any more. "She was very angry. Going into the other room she returned with my hat in her hand and held it toward me. 'Go now,' she said, and I reached for my hat without answering her. As I took the hat she fired with the pistol she held beneath it. She fired again and again. The bullets knocked me down. "She ran to the other room and I heard her fire a shot but I could not go to her immediately. When I was able to get up I went to the bedroom where she had gone, and there I saw she had killed herself."

LIVED AT GREEN BAY

Green Bay—(AP)—Mrs. Robert H. Ingersoll, wife of the famous watch manufacturer, who was killed in a shooting tangle in a New York apartment, was the oldest daughter of W. M. Bannister, a lumberman of this section of the state several years ago. The family lived in Green Bay, but a short time when they moved to Marinette, where Mr. Bannister conducted a lumber mill.

FORMER AIDE OF DAUGHERTY SLAIN, CLAIM

Senator Hefflin Renews Charges of Efforts to Obtain Booze Funds

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The record of a mobile court proceeding was quoted in the senate Monday by Senator Hefflin, Democrat, Alabama, as bearing on his charge that Jess Smith, intimate of former Attorney General Daugherty, sought during the Harding administration to collect funds from bootleggers.

The Alabama senator quoted the court record as it was read before a secret meeting of the senate judiciary committee last April. According to the record, Aubrey Boyles, then United States district attorney, for southern Alabama, told the court that a friend of his named Boykin had told him Smith was seeking to raise $2,000,000 to pay off a Republican national committee debt and planned to have "the men in the liquor business and the breweries" contribute.

BOYLES ON STAND

Boyles himself was on the stand before the judiciary committee when this section of the court record was read and he denied that he had testified as the record showed before the Mobile court. Senator Hefflin made his speech as a result of a request from District Attorney Buckner in New York that the present any evidence tending to support his charge in the senate last week that Smith was murdered and that his death prevented the public from ever learning the inside story of "corruption" while Daugherty was attorney general.

"MELLON'S LOAN"

"He said, 'you know Secretary Mellon loaned the Republican national committee $5,000,000. Only $3,000,000 was repaid. There is a deficit of $2,000,000. Jess Smith is charged with getting up that money. "The plan is to have the liquor men, the men in the liquor business and breweries contribute to this fund. United States attorneys in some places have been arranged with. They will be expected to collect from the bootleggers the money and contribute a certain portion of it to that fund. The Alabama senator again told the senate that Smith was murdered in Daugherty's apartment here, and that the coroner's verdict of suicide was wrong.

"KNEW TOO MUCH"

"He knew too much," Hefflin said. "They had to get rid of him." The senator added that he didn't know whether the $5,000,000 said to have been loaned the Republican committee by Secretary Mellon was "Mellon money or the government's." "I know that $3,000,000 was brought in to Mellon and Jess Smith was assigned to get the other $2,000,000. "I am going to keep on until this thing is laid before the American people," Hefflin said.

Mrs. Fessett started to run but was pursued by her husband who shot her through the head and then turned the pistol on himself.

WET BLOC PREPARES FOR BATTLE AFTER CHRISTMAS RECESS

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The wet bloc in the house is preparing to go into action in behalf of a modification proposal after the Christmas recess of congress. Meanwhile its members and senate colleagues are being accused by Wayne B. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon league, of trying to "starve the prohibition cat so it cannot catch the liquor mice." His comment was based on the action of wet representatives and senators in forcing a $500,000 item for expenses of under-cover enforcement agents out of the treasury department supply bill.

CONFESSES HE KILLED YOUNG CHICAGO BOY

Harold Croarkin Admits Murder of Lad After Mistreating Him

Chicago—(AP)—Harold Croarkin Monday confessed he slew 6-year-old Walter Schmidt in a northside barn loft, in a panic of fright, after he had attempted to mistreat the boy, fearing his victim would tell of his actions.

The admissions of motive came at the end of a long hours questioning, following the youth's voluntary surrender on Sunday. Previously he had maintained that he did not know why he killed the youth, who was found dying Friday night in the loft where the attack occurred.

DEMANDS DEATH PENALTY

"In the murder of a 6-year-old boy by a depraved man there can be no extenuating circumstances. Of course I can't say what will be done in this case, but I do know what I did in the Fitzgerald case." The prosecutor was referring to the time he, as a judge, sentenced a man to death in connection with a similar slaying. In Croarkin's latest statement, which followed a number of rambling declarations concerning his slaying, he said that he had asked Walter to go after some coffee. They had no bucket and another boy asked to go home for one. Croarkin then went into the barn with Walter and after describing his actions, he said that he became alarmed, having been told in a previous case in which he was named that his actions constituted a penal offense. He then decided to slay the youth and asked him to go to the second floor. Seizing a hammer he followed him. He then dashed the youth to climb into the loft. There he related, he struck the boy and left him to die.

MISSING BOY RETURNS

Richard Pospishil, 14, missing since last Wednesday, returned to his home Monday with a story which prompted a police search for two men. The Pospishil had frequented the Devon Riding academy premises and it had been feared that he might have been a victim of Croarkin.

He said that while he was on his way to the same school, attended by the Schmidt boy, two men abducted him and held him captive in a bungalow. He was unable to give the location of the bungalow or to describe the kidnappers, except that they were dark and appeared to be under 30 years of age.

CONSIDER PLAN FOR COUNTY TO BUY ALL TAX CERTIFICATES

Finance Committee Ponders
Situation Which Has Caused
Deficit in County Funds

The finance committee of the county board, working under a resolution approved at the November session, has under advisement and investigation the feasibility of the county buying in all tax certificates. A report on the committee findings will be prepared for the February meeting. Advocates of the proposal point out that the county under the present sales to individuals system disposes only of certificates on which it is to be reasonably supposed that redemption will be made and interest paid. This leaves the county with virtually only those certificates that are valueless, or almost so, in the majority of instances.

LAND IS VALUELESS
When the audit for the county was completed as of Sept. 30, the county possessed slightly more than $124,000 worth of certificates. Since that date enough have been purchased to reduce the amount to $92,000. Under ordinary circumstances there will be little movement from now on for this year, it believed.

Much of the land represented is swamp or low value tracts where taxes are considered higher than the actual value of the acreage at the present time.

It is pointed out that as the county pays taxes on all property involved in the certificates it might be as well to hold title to them as one argument for the purchase plan. On the other hand the commonwealth might find itself saddled with a great deal of useless land on which the expense of clearing title had been made.

Although actual figures are not available as the cost would vary in each instance this probably represents the largest single drawback against the county going into the land business.

Another solution might be in increasing the interest charges from the present 10 per cent back to 15 per cent. It is considered probable that such a compromise suggestion may be brought before board.

A tentative survey of the state to gather statistics on the question has revealed so far that some counties that purchase their own tax certificates find it profitable and others not. This leads the committee to believe that circumstances of each county govern the practicability of the proposed innovation. For this reason an intensive study of strictly Outagamie conditions will be made before any report is submitted to the board, according to members of the committee.

EXCELLENT CHORAL WORK IN MESSIAH

1,200 Persons Hear Chorus
of 170 Sing Handel's Great Oratorio

Exceptional choral and solo work was shown in the singing of Handel's great oratorio, "The Messiah" at Lawrence Memorial chapel Sunday evening before an audience of about 1,200 persons. Dean Carl J. Waterman directed the chorus of 170 students of Lawrence Conservatory of Music. The tenor solos were omitted, Mr. Waterman, was unable to sing because of a cold, and the baritone solos which were to be sung by J. Raymond Walsh were taken by Carl McKee. Mr. Walsh also was ill.

The chorus was balanced particularly well and there was a good quality of tonal work throughout the parts. A responsiveness and fervor for the Handel epic were portrayed throughout. Among the choruses which especially pleased were: "For Unto Us a Child Is Born," "Behold the Lamb of God," "Lift Up Your Heads," "Oh Ye Gates," "All We Like Sheep Have Gone Astray," and the final, famous "Hallelujah Chorus."

Mrs. Marian Hutchison McCreedy was the soprano soloist. The clear quality of her voice was perhaps best shown in the selections: "Rejoice Greatly, O Daughter of Zion," "Come Unto Him All Ye that Labor and Are Heavy Laden," and "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth."

"He Shall Feed His Flock Like a Shepherd," was beautifully sung by Miss Dora Edlin, contralto. Miss Eleanor McKibbin, contralto, did her best work in "He Was Despised and Rejected of Men." Mr. McKee's two numbers, "Why Do the Nations," and "The Trumpet Shall Sound," were well done.

The conservatory orchestra conducted by Prof. Percy Fullinwider accompanied the chorus. "The Pastoral Symphony" as played by the orchestra was well received by the audience. Accompanists were La Vahn Maesch, organist, Miss Helen Haertl and Everett Roubush, pianists.

It would also loan state funds, now done by the teachers retirement board, the insurance department and the university.

Compilation of consolidated reports of all state departments would be its duty, instead of the present system of separate reports as required by the statutes. It would also publish popular information upon state and local revenues and expenses.

MEDICAL BUILDING TO BE ERECTED ON UNIVERSITY LANDS

Ready to Break Ground for
New State Service Memorial Institute

Madison — (P) — Preparations for breaking ground in the construction of the new Service Memorial Institute for medicine and hygiene on the University of Wisconsin campus are being completed and within a few days excavation is expected to be well under way. Contracts aggregating $568,000 have been awarded by the board of regents and it is hoped to have the building completed by September 1928.

This is the first building to be erected at the university distinctly for medical teaching and research, although a medical school was authorized as early as 1855 and the 1913 legislature made an appropriation for a building for medicine or physics.

"The Service Memorial Institute marks a forward step in the realization of Wisconsin's ideals of public service," declared Dr. Charles E. Barden, dean of the university medical school. "It is a memorial to those who served in the world war and as such gives new expression to public gratitude for this service. It is designed for the advancement of knowledge of medicine and hygiene, for education in these branches of knowledge and for state service in the application of this knowledge to human needs."

Active state support of scientific measures to combat disease and promote health began in Wisconsin about twenty years ago during the administration of Governor La Follette. Departments in the fundamental medical sciences were established at the university. The State Board of Health, was reorganized and given greatly increased support. The laboratory of the Board of Health, the State Laboratory of Hygiene, which furnished special types of service to physicians and health officers, was located at the university because of the scientific advantages there. Preliminary measures were taken for the establishment of a state tuberculosis sanitarium. Steps were taken to enable the university to establish the first half of the medical course and this was duly authorized by the legislature in 1907.

The work thus started rapidly expanded and as it grew its value became more manifest. This in turn led to increased support for work already undertaken and to legislative authorization of the measure. In 1915 the Board of Control established at Mendota a Psychiatric Institute to promote scientific medical work in connection with the institution under its control and to furnish certain kinds of service to physicians.

This laboratory was transferred to the university campus in 1925 for the sake of scientific facilities there. In 1917 the university received gift funds for a hospital for clinical research as a memorial to Mary Cornelius Bradley and gift funds to supplement those appropriated at the 1915 session of the legislature for a student infirmary. At the 1917 session of the legislature funds were appropriated for medical extension so that the university might aid in making the newer medical knowledge available to the physicians of the state. At the 1915 session of the legislature authority was given for the establishment of a complete medical course at the university. At the 1920 session the erection of the Wisconsin General Hospital was authorized. At the 1921 session of the legislature the office of State Toxicologist was established at the university to lend scientific aid to public officials in cases of suspected poisoning. At the 1925 session of the legislature the erection of the Service Memorial Institutes was authorized. In 1925-26 the third year of the medical course was offered for the first time at the state university and in 1926-27 a complete medical course was given for the first time. In clinical teaching advantage is taken of the cooperation of medical centers outside of Madison as well as of the facilities there.

The building for the Service Memorial Institutes is located on the site set aside by the Board of Regents for medical school and hospital development.

The book is a guide to publications and activities relating to domestic marketing agencies. It is available at the chamber office.

On this site there are now located the Wisconsin General Hospital, the Bradley Memorial Hospital, the Student Infirmary and the Nurses dormitory. The new building is designed to maintain its individuality as a memorial building and yet form a harmonious part of the group of buildings now on the site and which may be erected there in the future.

The new building will house institutes for hygiene, physiology, physiological chemistry, pathology, medical bacteriology and parasitology, pharmacology and toxicology, radiology and rehabilitation. It will contain the library of the medical school and lecture and recitation rooms. Provision for special quarters for institutes of anatomy and for the psychiatric institute must at present be postponed. Anatomy will continue to occupy quarters in Science Hall, the psychiatric institute quarters in the Bradley Memorial Hospital.

The work thus started rapidly expanded and as it grew its value became more manifest. This in turn led to increased support for work already undertaken and to legislative authorization of the measure. In 1915 the Board of Control established at Mendota a Psychiatric Institute to promote scientific medical work in connection with the institution under its control and to furnish certain kinds of service to physicians.

This laboratory was transferred to the university campus in 1925 for the sake of scientific facilities there. In 1917 the university received gift funds for a hospital for clinical research as a memorial to Mary Cornelius Bradley and gift funds to supplement those appropriated at the 1915 session of the legislature for a student infirmary. At the 1917 session of the legislature funds were appropriated for medical extension so that the university might aid in making the newer medical knowledge available to the physicians of the state. At the 1915 session of the legislature authority was given for the establishment of a complete medical course at the university. At the 1920 session the erection of the Wisconsin General Hospital was authorized. At the 1921 session of the legislature the office of State Toxicologist was established at the university to lend scientific aid to public officials in cases of suspected poisoning. At the 1925 session of the legislature the erection of the Service Memorial Institutes was authorized. In 1925-26 the third year of the medical course was offered for the first time at the state university and in 1926-27 a complete medical course was given for the first time. In clinical teaching advantage is taken of the cooperation of medical centers outside of Madison as well as of the facilities there.

The building for the Service Memorial Institutes is located on the site set aside by the Board of Regents for medical school and hospital development.

DISEASE PREVENTION BRINGS GOOD HEALTH

A crop of good health was grown at Seymour this winter from seeds of prevention sown during the opening days of the school year, it was reported Saturday by County Nurse Marie Klein.

The annual visitation of "plain colds" to the extent of reducing school attendance to a noticeable degree apparently was warded off in that city this winter.

Teachers have instructions to send children home at the first sign of a bad cold but this edict has rarely been called into play in Seymour this winter, the nurse said.

WANTS COUNCIL TO ORDER REMOVAL OF CURB "GAS" PUMPS

But Alderman Marty's Resolution Is Held Up for Investigation

Neenah—Payment of bills amounting to $20.84, a discussion of conditions existing in a poor family here and whether gasoline pumps are nuisances on the streets took up the time at a short meeting of city council Saturday evening. In the absence of Mayor J. H. Denhardt, Alderman William Schmidt, president of the council, presided.

Alderman Marty moved that all curb gasoline pumps, including those which have been in use for some time, be ordered removed. The matter was referred to the committee on street, highways and bridges for investigation as it was contended there are some pumps which are not considered nuisances.

Alderman Martin, chairman of the poor committee, reported on a family on Main-st. which, he said was a case for the board of health to investigate. The family came to Neenah from Woodville, Calumet-co., a few weeks ago. The council was of the opinion that the building should be condemned as unfit for a family to live in. It was finally referred to the board of health to investigate.

A motion to place a light at corner of Winnebago-ave and Church-st was lost.

It was alleged, she filed a suit for divorce after deserting her husband. Frank B. Koef, attorney for Mr. Scott, then filed suit for the husband, but was unable to obtain service on the wife. She was traced to various cities in the state. When she was finally located in La Crosse, statutory charges were preferred against her and her companion and they were both sent to Waupun.

ART FOUND IN ALL LIFELIKE THINGS, SAYS SUPERVISOR

Public Schools Instructor Compiles Book on Things Artistic

"Art is found in all things in life," is the theme of the mimeographed book on art, compiled and written by Miss Dorothy Krippner, art supervisor in the public schools, to be used in the junior high school work in that subject. Miss Krippner goes on to explain how we may find art in the so-called common things.

You who understand the influence of beauty in living, are masters of your environment and build your character upon attractive homes, good furniture, gardens, clothes, and utensils," the supervisor says in the forward to the book. "Those who neglect these things pay for their ignorance in being mastered by ugly surroundings which breed unhappiness and inefficiency. You are building the United States 100 years hence."

Miss Krippner quotes: "A nation is only worthy of the mountains, plains, valleys, forests, and the scenes that it has inherited when by all its acts and arts, it is preserving them or making them more lovely for future generations."

Some of the subjects discussed in the volume are: Why art is necessary for successful living; the story of the 1925 better home; a few things to consider in planning a home; architecture; why we appreciate beauty; craft work; and its practical use in the home; crepe paper craft; color influence; art in industry; color, importance of color in dress; problems of the stage designer. Miss Krippner started the work last year, completing it this fall. The mechanical process of printing the book will be finished at the close of the Christmas vacation.

A yellow paper cover is symbolic of art as light and cheer giving. It was designed by the author, and made by Selmar Saefer, of the faculty of the Appleton vocational school.

The author extended her "sincere thanks to Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, for advice and encouragement." A complete bibliography is contained in the work of all references used by Miss Krippner in her study.

TAKE FEDERAL CENSUS OF PRIVATE AIRPLANES

An attempt is being made by the federal department of commerce to take a census of the civilian owned airplanes in the United States. W. P. MacCracken, assistant secretary of aeronautics, recently requested all former army pilots to assist in taking this census.

The census is being taken in order that the government may make provisions intelligently for future landing fields and their equipment. An attempt is being made to get this data by mail as a personal survey would cost more than $100,000. Any person owning a plane is asked to write Mr. MacCracken at Washington sending the name of his machine, type, age and the purpose for which it is being used.

BETA PHI ALPHA TO ARRANGE CONVENTION

Zeta of Beta Phi Alpha has been chosen as the hostess chapter for the fraternity's national convention which will take place in Wisconsin June 19 to 24. It is possible that the meetings will take place on the Lawrence campus with Russell Sage dormitory as headquarters. Through the national council is considering having the convention at one of the northern Wisconsin resorts. Delegates from as far west as the University of California and University of Washington, as far south as Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Texas, and as far east as Syracuse University at Syracuse, N. Y., will be guests of their Lawrence sisters. A marshal of convention is to be named from the Lawrence alumni members to be in charge of the local arrangements for convention. Large delegations are expected from the nearby chapters at the universities of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois, since this is the first time that the fraternity has met in the Middle West.

This Man Puts Coal Oil Johnny To Bitter Shame

A man so generous that in court annals he makes a comparison with Coal Oil Johnny, of spendthrift fame a generation ago, look like a piker has been discovered among the membership of Outagamie-co's Alimony club over which Harry A. Shannon, clerk of municipal and circuit court, so genially presides.

Ordinarily, court records show, if there is any discrepancy between what the court orders paid and what the clerk receives to pass on to the former life and family, it will invariably be on the debit side of the account. "However," Mr. Shannon said, "there is apparently truth in the assertion that the exception proves the rule."

Several months ago a young couple was divorced here. The judge ordered the defendant, the husband, to pay a certain amount in alimony each week.

Each week the money arrives with meticulous regularity. Each week the draft is for $5 more than the court ordered the husband to pay.

OSHKOSH WOMAN IS LEADER FOR PEACE

Urges Co-ordination of Work of Many Societies With Like Objects

BY CATHERINE FRANCIS Washington, D. C.—Mrs. Ben Hooper, Oshkosh, delegate from the General Federation of Women's clubs to the Conference on the Cause and Cure of War, and one of the organizers of the first conference, discussed the necessity for well organized effort in the work for the establishment of world peace in her address before the Woman's National Democratic Club, at the weekly program luncheon here.

"The pushing force to cure war has to come from women," said Mrs. Hooper. "Men never will do it. Physical courage has been held as one of the first attributes of manhood since time began, and the instinct to do battle for their own is too deeply implanted for man to protest vigorously against war. It is woman's responsibility to become the compelling force behind this task—the men will arbitrate if the way is pointed out, but the women will have to find the way."

"In order to make any progress," continued Mrs. Hooper, "we have already realized that we must co-ordinate our efforts. For many years there have been numbers of organizations with programs for peace, but no two have been alike. Now we have drawn together these groups under one advisory body and with a well constructed program planned before all alike, we should see tremendous results."

In concluding, Mrs. Hooper warned the women against allowing the fight for peace to become entangled with party politics. "Treaties for arbitrations in place of war, with a nonpartisan, unselfish program working toward this end, will be the ultimate answer to the problem facing us, a problem that is recurring out as the mothers of men who died in France with our promise ringing in their ears that that should be the last war—the war to end wars."

Mrs. A. A. Jones, president of the club presided at the luncheon. Mrs.

AGREEMENT IN LAKE WATER DIVERSION

An agreement has been reached between those supporting Chicago's fight for the Illinois river waterway improvement and those who have opposed it, under which provision is made in the river and harbor bill for the dredging of a nine foot channel to connect Chicago with the Mississippi river. All parties accepted an amendment to the bill which states "that nothing in this act shall be construed as authorizing any diversion of water from Lake Michigan." This meets satisfactorily the objections to the act in its original form. It is the opinion of Major-General Edgar Jadwin, chief of engineers of the war department, that the amendment in no way affects the question of diversion. It is the general understanding that it leaves the issue without prejudice to either the opponents or proponents of diversion.

Of course if improvement of the waterway is authorized Chicago will ask for and expect to receive authority to divert whatever water is necessary to navigation. It has been stated that the amount of water required by the proposed nine foot channel is very much less than is now being diverted, in fact nominal. It is entirely an engineering question, but if this estimate is correct it goes to substantiate the contention that Chicago's real interest is not in the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway, but in the diversion of water in sufficient quantity to continue using it for exploitation and to dispose of its sewage. At any rate, provision for the waterway is without harm if the lake states which are opposing diversion obtain a favorable verdict in the supreme court of the United States, where they are seeking to enjoin Chicago from its theft of lake water and where the authority of congress or any other agency of government to permit diversion at the expense of navigation is challenged. So far as incorporating the Illinois waterway project into the river and harbor bill is concerned, it leaves the whole subject of diversion in status quo. This is satisfactory to the lake states, whose hopes of protection lie primarily with the supreme court, and secondarily with congress.

NO TAX REDUCTION

The administration party leaders in the house have decided there will be no reduction of income taxes, either temporary or permanent, at the present session. This action is taken on the ground that to attempt tax legislation of any kind would tie up the short sitting with debate ending in nothing. The Democrats have announced their intention of pressing for permanent reduction of taxes, a proposition to which the administration will not accede. Both Mr. Mellon and President Coolidge say there must be no change in existing rates for another year or so, until the final workings of the present law can be determined. They are willing to extend a rebate for one year, and in lieu of this they prefer to apply the prospective surplus to a further reduction of the national debt.

THE GOVERNMENT REALLY HAD NO ALTERNATIVE to abandon the president's proposal for temporary relief to income taxpayers in the face of Democratic policy. Indications are that it will now use the surplus to reduce the war indebtedness, an alternative that has its merits and in support of which there is much public opinion. However, the administration's decision is not necessarily final. It will be possible to call an extra session, following the adjournment March 4, provided the president wishes to see the matter through and have the tax question thrashed out along with other pending legislation. In fact, there will be a great deal to argue in favor of a special session if the present congress does not enact satisfactory farm legislation, provide proper control of radio and attend to other measures that demand attention. In some respects it might be a good thing to let the short and lame-duck session kill time with tax debate and then turn the legislative program over to the newly elected congress in a special session.

SEEKERS AFTER PEACE

In recent years certain figures stand out conspicuously as the great friends and promoters of world peace. One of these was Mr. Roosevelt, notwithstanding his "big stick" policy, for he believed in a league of nations to enforce peace and in a world court. Another is Elihu Root, one of the principal founders of the world court, and a third is of course Woodrow Wilson. Mr. Root's service in behalf of world peace has just been recognized by awarding to him the Woodrow Wilson Prize. No more appropriate selection could have been made, in fact there was no other to compete with Mr. Root. He alone was entitled to the high honor this distinction confers.

For more than ten years Mr. Root had been a student of international peace. The party to which he belonged was irrevocably committed to the very policy for bringing it about that Mr. Wilson eventually put into play. Mr. Root was, therefore, serving not only his personal wishes, but the record of his party. His selection by Mr. Wilson as the American member to help draft the world court protocol and set up that tribunal was a natural recognition of this work and of Mr. Root's eminent ability. These events, and the connection of Mr. Root, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Taft and other distinguished Republicans with them, culminating in Mr. Wilson's acts, constitute a chapter of great statesmanship and honor in American history.

But it has all come to naught. It has remained for a Republican administration and the Republican party to disavow the policies and constructive acts in foreign affairs of leaders beside whom those of today are pygmies and cheap politicians. They would, indeed, assent to American participation in the world court, but with reservations offensive to other adherents, and now a Republican president has pigeon-holed our proposed membership and stands ready to see it lapse, merely because political exigencies of the moment seem to invite such a course. Few greater indictments of the Republican party have been recorded, and it is an indictment that will stand. Not only is it a humiliation upon the Republican party, but the humiliation is accentuated by the notable and deserving honor now conferred upon one of its foremost leaders, Elihu Root.

CONTINUE WITH TRIALS

Following the acquittal of Fall and Doherty the government will now have to determine whether it will prosecute them for bribery, of which they are charged, as well as Fall and Sinclair on both bribery and conspiracy charges. Regardless of whether the trials will result in conviction or acquittal, we think the government owes it to the people and to itself to push these cases. It may or may not be easier to prove bribery than conspiracy, but it is worth the effort. We are not going to stop corruption and betrayals of trust in public life by even a strong gesture against such offenses as this trio is charged with, and as they undoubtedly committed. We should go all the way and that means trying the issue to a final conclusion. If juries will not convict them the government has at least done its duty by the people and in support of its own integrity.

THIS IS A GIFT

Save your friends and yourself the pain of junk-racks for Christmas and this year. Have a lot of books which do not cost a great deal and will please any recipient. I select these because I know they are good. I do not mean to imply that books not on my list are not good but I am not recommending books which are not worth the price.

For anybody interested in the science of nutrition the little book on "Food Nutrition and Health," by Prof. E. V. McCollum, John Hopkins school of hygiene, Baltimore, is sure to please. This book is published at $1.50 by the author.

For a friend who has diabetes, "Diabetes Diet," by McHenry & Cooper, published at $2 by Harper & Brothers, New York, makes a practical and useful guidebook. Or if the patient is making his own unanalysis and trying to regulate his diet accordingly, a "Primer for Diabetic Patients," by Wilder-Foley, Ellithorpe, published by W. B. Saunders company, Philadelphia, at $1.50 (if I recollect) will furnish excellent instructions.

For a tuberculosis patient or for one "threatened" with the disease, the "Recovery Record," by Drs. G. A. Webb and C. T. Taylor, published by Paul H. Hoeber, Inc., New York, at $2, is a veritable gold mine of concentrated wisdom for the first 50 pages, and a gold brick for the rest of the book which consists of printed charts for recording pulse, temperature, etc.

Suppose you have an old friend, 30, 40 or even doddering along toward 50, whose memory seems to be poor. Don't chide the old chap for it, but present him with a copy of Dr. Arnold Lorand's "Defective Memory, Absent Mindedness," published at $3 by F. A. Davis company, Philadelphia. Dr. Lorand is the author of "Old Age Deferred" and his books seldom slip over into the wild, but remain pretty well within the bounds of sound science.

Maybe you have some amateur parents or even some old and experienced parents who are yet novices at the business of teaching children the truth in the right way. Give such parents a copy of "The Parents' Guide" by Dr. Emma F. A. Drake and Ozora S. Davis, published by J. L. Nichols & Co., Naperville, Ill., at $2.

Here are three excellent books for the expectant mother: "The Prospective Mother," by Dr. J. M. Simons, published by D. Appleton & Co., New York, at $2; "Simplifying Motherhood," by Dr. Frank H. Richardson, published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York, at 175c; and "Approaching Motherhood," by Dr. George L. Brodhead, published by Paul H. Hoeber, Inc., New York, at $1.50. Of the three I like Dr. Richardson's "Simplifying Motherhood" best, but perhaps the average lay reader will find Dr. Simons' "The Prospective Mother" quite as helpful.

Dr. Simons gives an excellent general course of instruction for the prospective mother. Dr. Richardson places more emphasis on the importance of nursing the baby. Dr. Brodhead presents the essential information in the attractive form of questions and answers throughout the book.

For anybody who is interested in health and wants sound and authoritative information on all aspects of health, if the poor gink doesn't know enough to subscribe for this newspaper send him as a gift a year's subscription to Iyegier, published at 535 North Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill., at $3 a year. This is in my judgment the cleanest, most interesting and helpful health magazine available, and it will be welcomed in any home.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Chapped Hands
Some time ago you published a remedy for chapped hands. We would kindly give it again? (R. W.)

Answers—Boil in a pint of distilled water or rain water three teaspoonsful of boric acid, three teaspoonsful of glycerin and 80 grains of tragacanth shavings or chips (not powder), stirring constantly until a clear thin jelly is obtained. Add water to make up for evaporation. Apply a few drops to hands once or twice a day after washing and before the skin is quite dry. This lotion prevents redness and roughness of the skin as well as chapping. It is sometimes used as a soothing lotion after shaving.

THAT HAPPY YULETIDE SPIRIT

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

A SOUTH AFRICAN GENIUS

For the third time in this series of "Adventures" I am calling attention to the work of Sarah Gertrude Millin of South Africa, a novelist who, it seems to me, has a clear right to the title of genius. She has published three novels. I happened to read the second first, "God's Stepchildren," and I still believe it was one of the greatest novels of 1925. Next I read "Mary Glenn," which was a story on a much smaller scale than "God's Stepchildren," covering a few weeks instead of a century of time but just as exquisitely done. Recently I picked up Miss Millin's first published book, "The Jordans," issued in America in 1925, and in that, her maiden flight, there is the same power, the same sense of great material greatly handled, the same certainty that here is that very rare thing, an original writer.

EXPERIMENTING WITH IDEAS

This is not saying that "The Jordans" is as great a novel as either "God's Stepchildren" or "Mary Glenn." I do not believe it is. The story is not as well organized as either one of the other two and there runs through it the suggestion that the author sometimes was groping. It sounds as if she is experimenting with her ideas and is trying them out on the public. The result is that the story lacks that unity of impression that makes the impact of both "God's Stepchildren" and of "Mary Glenn" unforgettable.

But after admitting that, "The Jordans" is still very far ahead of the average novel that is published and it has the one quality that distinguishes Sarah Gertrude Millin from all present-day novelists whose work I am acquainted with. — a genius for compression. That quality is found in all three books. "God's Stepchildren" covers a century in time and the story of four generations is told. Yet the book covers only about 300 pages. In spite of that the story of the four generations is told adequately, as adequately as if a writer, like Dos- toevsky, had devoted 2,000 pages to it; he would probably have done.

"Mary Glenn" was even briefer — only some 250 pages, if a rememberer correctly. But again the impression of telling the story of a whole generation is given and it is given adequately so that the reader does not feel that anything has been left out. "The Jordans" has only 242 pages but the story covers two generations and does it with a richness of detail that is astonishing.

The secret of it eludes one even after the most searching analysis. I have been trying to discover after reading each of the three books, how it was done but have failed completely. When a writer can take, let us say, his material of a book like "An American Tragedy," covering 840 closely printed pages, and compress it in a book of 250 pages of large print without losing a single jot of the impression of the story or of the material or of the sense of the background, it is sheer genius, offhand, almost anyone would say that such a feat is impossible. But it is the business of a writer to do the impossible, and Sarah Gertrude Millin has done it three times in succession.

DIAMOND MINE STORY

"The Jordans" is the story of the diamond mines of South Africa. An English youth, Henry Jordan, goes to South Africa during the early diamond rush, when Kimberly was a more open veldt, to seek his fortune. He is congenitally a failure and he fails, with diamonds all about him that make the fortunes of others, even of his partner in the venture. Incidentally every one of Miss Millin's books contains a failure and she understands the psychology of the failure better than any writer I know.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

Birds Need Santa Claus When Snow Comes

BY AURTHUR N. PACK
President, American Nature Ass'n.

After the Christmas tree has served its appointed purpose of bringing joy to the children, it may be planted outdoors and laden with gifts for the birds, for this is their season of stress. If the weather be mild and open, they have small need of our bounty, for the fruit still is clinging to woodbine and pokeweed and holly, the seed of a million weeds is on field and roadside, and the insects wintering beneath the leaves and grass, furnish them a feast.

But when the snow drifts deep, or the ice-storm seals from their search the bounty which Nature has provided, then our help is welcome. With the earliest dawn they are up and about, seeking whatever we may spare from our abundance.

Then may the discarded Christmas tree enter on its second period of usefulness. Bins to its trunk and branches some bags of suet; suspend from its stoutest limb the halves of an opened coconut; clear at its base a space of ground, and then scatter bread crumbs, and parings and bones with bits of meat and fat adhering, or rolled oats or corn flakes, almost anything in the way of eatables. Junco and sparrow and chickadee and cardinal, even the blue jay, will flock to the feast. Thus may we help them and also help ourselves, for the sight of them at their feast will more than repay us for the small effort.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—New York is not generally regarded as much of a church town.

Yet, upon a Sunday morning, you can find scenes along Fifth avenue or Madison or Park that would make Broadway envious.

Several there are where the standing-room only sign is out hours before the doors open and where lines gather in front, just as they gather before a popular movie theater.

There may be another church that issues "seat tickets," but I am acquainted only with one—the Park Avenue Baptist church, where Rev. Henry Emerson Fosdick preaches.

Not the least attraction of this church is the arrival of John D. Rockefeller—for this is "his" church. I saw him in come out of a cold, snowy morning, looking for all the world like a venerable farmer.

His ears were padded with warm cushions, his thin, aged, hands covered by heavy gloves; his spare, awkward figure muffled in a heavy coat. Beside him came his valet. The moment the oil magnate removed his hat the valet jumped to his task of fixing the very famous Rockefeller hair—or rather lack of it.

Visitors from all over the world are drawn by the Fosdick reputation, but few crush the church doors at the first attempt.

In the basement below a service is held for the overflow and here the Rev. Fosdick appears for a few moments, the general service being given by a substitute pastor.

Those who go through the novelty of several overflow meetings become the best candidates for admission tickets. It is taken as an indication of their sincerity and interest.

Those who stand in line make at least the overflow and, if they are patient, eventually get into the "ticket" list and may pass in.

The "little church around the corner" seldom is missed by visitors, particularly those who are interested in romance and thousands, who have been wed there come back on pilgrim images, while sons, daughters, and grandchildren inhale a bit of its romantic tradition.

One couple made it a practice to visit the church on each anniversary of their wedding. A year or so ago it was noted that they did not come. Inquiry showed that the wife had died. A few weeks later the bereaved husband appeared to find some solace within its walls.

ODD TESTING MACHINE IN USE

Among the many testing machines in use to aid American industry are those to test the power of adhesive tape, the deformation of golf balls under driving stress, the muscular reaction of frogs' legs, the strength of coaklet handles and the tractive efforts of elephants.

ANTS AWE LARGEST ANIMALS

In certain places of South America and Africa there are species of ants that strike fear and awe into even the largest beasts. These ants at times start "marching" and it is said that the most agile and strongest animals must give way to them.

WILL REVISE RAIL RATE TERRITORIES AT OMAHA HEARING

Western Trunkline Class Rate
May Be Subjected to New High and Low Scale

Omaha, Neb.—(AP)—Revision of the railroad rate structure of the middle west and far west looms as the Interstate Commerce commission and state public utility bodies prepare for hearings on the western trunkline class rate situation, the first of which will be held Jan. 11 before the I. C. C. examiners.

The largest cooperative case ever undertaken jointly by the I. C. C. and state commissions, its discussions are expected to affect business of all kinds located in this region, in the opinion of U. G. Powell, rate expert of the Nebraska Railway commission, and a member of the rate committee of the National Association of Public Utility commissions.

OUTLINE TERRITORY
The western trunk line territory has been outlined by the national commission to include Illinois, Wisconsin, the upper peninsula of Michigan, Missouri (north of the Missouri river), Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Colorado, (east of a line, Trinidad to Pueblo, Denver to Cheyenne) and that portion of eastern Wyoming east of a line Cheyenne to Casper to Sheridan.

The effect on transportation centers will depend to a considerable degree on how the I. C. C. applies whatever schedule of distance rates it may adopt from points of origin to destinations. There are now large group points of origin illustrated by the Chicago group which covers an extensive territory of approximately 100 miles in length and 50 miles wide. If the scale the commission finally adopts should be laid down as an absolute distance tariff and the carriers not be authorized to make groups of points of origin the effect will be to disrupt the parity of class rates that now exist in the eastern part of the western trunk line territory, declared Mr. Powell.

FINAL EFFECTS PRONOUNCED
Final effect on intrastate rates may be quite pronounced, he said. If it should finally be the decision of the interstate body that the interstate scale adopted by them should be used by states in western territory as a maximum and minimum scale the effect in some of the states will be to raise the rates very materially, possibly as much as 50 per cent in Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

"Every effort is being made to agree on as many of the converted points to come up at the hearing, as possible," said the rate expert. "Shippers are cooperating and it is hoped that the record finally submitted to the commission will be much more comprehensive than any they have ever received on a large class rate adjustment."

"For two years," he continued, "a committee of traffic experts representing shippers in western trunk line territory have conferred, many times with the railroads in the hope that a class rate scale might be agreed to and thereby obviate the necessity of an order from the I. C. C. The last scale of class rates presented to the shippers' committee by the carriers would have the effect of increasing rates from the Chicago group to stations as far west as the Missouri river in different degrees as between various classes.

"A study made, based on distances of 50 to 500 miles on 50 mile gradation from Chicago to Kansas City, Chicago to Omaha, and Chicago to Minneapolis, shows that the last scale proposed by the carriers would have the effect of raising class rates varying from 14 per cent in class one to 16 per cent in class five."

USE CARE IF YOU WOULD AVOID FIRE, CHIEF WARNS

If tested electrical decorations are used, ordinary care exerted in the placing of the tree and if only nonflammable materials are incorporated into the decorations, there will be a dearth of fires due to Christmas celebrations, according to Fire Chief George T. McGillan.

If parents and directors of public entertainments fail to observe common sense dictates there will be a serious danger of fire.

If costume playlets are presented it is considered advisable to design the dress with a minimum of easily ignited material.

Follow that outline and tragedy will be averted, the chief believes.

COUNTY POOR CLAIM IS SETTLED BY APPLETON

The offer of the county to drop its suit of slightly more than $800 against the city as reimbursement for poor aid extended the late Mrs. A. Beiro several years ago for a settlement of $750 has been accepted by the city. The common council instructed the city clerk to draw an order for this amount in favor of the county.

Although legally she was a resident of Appleton during the years when poor aid was extended to her, the aid was charged to the town of Buchanan which was believed to be her legal residence. The town also failed to pay for the aid, and the expenses consequently were stood by the county, which made claims against the town.

Recently the county learned the woman was a legal resident of Appleton, and the claim was then presented against the city.

Christmas Program

Pupils of the Woodlawn school will present a Christmas program at 7:30 Thursday evening for parents and friends. Miss Loretta Braemer, teacher, will have charge of the program. The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers association was postponed to permit pupils to present this program. A regular meeting of the association will be held in January.

CHRISTMAS CANDIES! THE KIND THAT MELT IN YOUR MOUTH

BY SISTER MARY

CHRISTMAS and candy! And if the candy be home-made and the hand that "molds" in your mouth, the combination is perfect.

Among the favorite home-made candies are the "different creams," but too often they seem to go wrong, and are found to have a sand-like texture.

Since there are tricks in all trades, perhaps a few of these tricks which are so simple and insure success are worth mentioning.

The thick cream of fat or fondant is changing a large part of the cane sugar into another sugar composed of much smaller and finer crystals than those of cane sugar. This new sugar is "invert" sugar and is part glucose, of course not all of the cane sugar is changed by the cooking process but enough must be changed to produce a creamy, melting texture.

One of the tricks to make sure of sufficient "inversion" takes place in the adding of an acid such as lemon juice, vinegar or cream of tartar to the sugar mixture. Cream of tartar is the easiest acid to use since it does not vary in strength as do lemon juice and vinegar.

ACID OR GLUCOSE

Or glucose can be added to prevent graining. Ordinary honey and corn syrups on the market are largely glucose. Molasses also contains a goodly amount of glucose.

So an acid which changes most of the cane sugar into invert sugar is added to the candy mixture or sufficient glucose is used without the acid to make a smooth candy. With the addition of too much glucose or too much acid, which of course makes too much glucose, the candy mixture will not respond to stirring and becomes more like a caramel or pull candy and, with longer cooking, a brittle, hard candy.

HAS MANY USES

The variations of fondant are legion. Finely chopped nuts added to the cream and the hot made into a roll which is cut in slices is always liked. A few drops of vanilla should be worked into the fondant with the nuts.

Two tablespoons butter, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla and 1-2 cup of fondant are worked with a fork until thoroughly blended. The mixture must then be allowed to stand in a covered bowl until chilled and firm. These "butter creams" are formed into marbles and dipped in chocolate.

You will find yourself "ruffing" dates with fondant flavored with vanilla, making flat little balls in an unbroken half of a nut garnishing the top, wrapping candies in thin squares of fondant and doing all sorts of things with this intriguing mixture.

CAREFUL OF CRYSTALS

Another "trick" is to let the candy cool undisturbed when it is done. When about lukewarm, beat or mold the syrup as desired. More evaporation takes place if a candy mixture is beaten while hot and the drier the mixture the larger the crystals and coarser the texture of the finished candy.

Over-cooking of a cream candy will cause large crystals and graininess. Too large an amount of water is driven slow fire until a golden syrup. Stir while melting. Add remaining sugar, corn syrup and cream, bring slowly to the boiling point, stirring constantly and add butter. Cook very slowly over a low fire. Cook until the syrup forms a hard ball when a few drops are tried in cold water until the thermometer registers 234 degrees Fahrenheit. Remove from the fire and let cool about ten minutes. Add vanilla and nuts and pour into a well-buttered seven square pan. Let stand until firm and mark into squares. When solid, cut in squares and wrap in oiled paper.

Peanut brittle is always good and a general favorite. It's extremely easy to make but there is danger of the hot sugar burning.

PEANUT BRITTLE

Two cups granulated sugar, 2-3 cup water, 1-2 lb. pure cream of tartar or 1 tablespoon white corn syrup. Soft sugar with cream of tartar or 1 tablespoon white corn syrup. Soft sugar with cream of tartar or 1 tablespoon white corn syrup.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

To Faith it seemed that that gay rehearsal of the wedding, within St. Peter's beautiful, austere, echoing immensity, on the even of Cherry's wedding day, was as binding as an actual ceremony could be.

It was bitterly cold outside, and since there were no services at St. Peter's that day, the church was like a vast, lead vault. Frances Warren and Selma Pruitt, who had sweetly acknowledged Cherry's rather impudent but sincere notes of apology for the scene she had created in their presence, were huddled in fur coats.

"You're going to have a fur coat by Christmas," Bob, there in the capacity of usher, along with Bill Warren and George Pruitt, whispered to Faith, as she withdrew from the center of the clamorous group after the rehearsal.

Isn't it heartbreaking to see how proud Mr. Cluny looks? Faith countered, though the sudden sweep of color into her pale cheeks had answered him mutely. "He tries to walk so so jauntily, as if he were trying to prove he isn't really old—just in his prime. I'm afraid that strenuous trip to Europe is going to be too much for him. Cherry will want to do everything and see everything, from ruins in a Venetian gondola to climbing the Alps, and he looks as if a sudden gust of this November wind would carry him away. Oh, Bob, I hope she'll be kind to him! It's breaking my heart to see him so proud and happy and so determined to be the gay young dog."

"Let's run away and have an hour to ourselves," Bob's fingers closed tightly around her arm, ardently, possessively. "I'm starving for you, darling. Cherry has kept you so frantically busy that I haven't had a real kiss for days."

"I'll have to tell her I'm going," Faith whispered.

When she edged quietly into the clamorous group about Cherry and the elderly bridegroom, she heard her sister saying, in a high, nervous, excited voice:

"Yes, I'm all packed. Every last one of my seven trunks was checked today, right to New York. Ralph did it himself, the darling." Her golden eyes were lifted fleetingly but with something like shy tenderness to the silver-haired old man who bent so possessively, so yearningly over her. "Two blessed, thrilling weeks in New York, and then—Europe! I'm so excited I can't sleep. All of you come over to the house now. Faith has made enough Thanksgiving pies for a dozen families, and Ralph has given Mother a case of the most marvelous sherry. Good for her, you know, but she won't be piggy about it."

RED-HEADED MOVIE ACTRESSES THANKFUL FOR THATCH OF FLAMING LOCKS THEY ONCE DISPISED

BY DAN THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD—Out in this hamlet of sets and klieg lights there's a small group of girls who have one thing in common—their red hair.

Potomost of these titian-haired beauties is Clara Bow, who often has been termed "queen of movie red-heads." Clara has won her way to the top in a short time.

Jocelyn Lee started her career in the chorus of George White's "Scandals." Later she was featured in Flo Ziegfeld's "Follies." It was while dancing for Ziegfeld that Jocelyn received an offer to go into pictures.

When Ethel Shannon was a kid she used to have no end of fights because other youngsters teased her about her red hair. But now she gives thanks for this flaming thatch. When Ethel finished school she wanted to try her luck in the movies. So she "hocked" the family piano for $135—enough to bring her here from Denver. She recently signed a five year contract, so she will be appearing on the silver sheet now and then for some time to come.

Then there's Barbara Kent, 17, Auburn-haired favorite of the Universal lot. Barbara has only been in Hollywood for a year but she isn't been wasting any time. Her first picture was the feminine lead in a western. Her best work to date was in "Flesh and the Devil" with John Gilbert. And her next picture probably will be opposite Reginald Denny.

Out on the De Mille lot playing in "The King of Kings" is a quiet red-haired girl—Majel Coleman. Majel is just a newcomer in pictures. She is under contract.

The cinema red-heads have only one complaint. On the screen they are brunets. They are pulling strong for technicolor photography.

said, "Go right ahead and play whatever you can." Then Clowny the music shop was quite a place. A smile spread on Santa's face when Santa shouted, "Where's a drum? I know just how to make one hum. I've done a lot of practicing upon an old tin pan."

He thought he'd give the band a treat, so on the drum began to beat. And shortly came an awful noise, like thunder, boom, bang, bang. "Oh, kindly stop it," Scouty cried. "I think my ears have burst inside. You're making such an awful noise, we can't hear a thing."

With that, we Clowny ceased to play. The great big drum was put away. Then they found a ukulele made of finest wood. It hummed upon the strings awhile. Ah, he could play the thing in style, and all the Tynies quite agreed it sounded pretty good.

"Oh, look! I've found a great big horn," said Scouty. "Sure as I am chimneys, the best kind of coal and so on. I am sure that two more houses in the United States of America have had bricklayers and chimney men busy at their inside of the last two weeks. Each went away determined to have an open fire before he was a month older.

The children were discussing where to go after a movie. I came home late and found a dozen of them here toasting their chins and some marshmallows before the fire. "I think I can fix a grate at home for coal," said two of the boys. "I like that better than any fire I ever saw."

An old lady sat before it and talked. "I'd give anything for that fire at home," she said. "My rheumatism would be cooked out of me in a week."

And so it goes.

Why do people love an open fire? Because it is not only cheerful but the natural thing to have. No one likes modern artificialities if they can have the real thing. How many people have closed their nice old grates and put in gas fronts! If you have a good chimney, a coal or wood fire does not make much dirt. Anyway one is more than compensated for the little trouble they are.

If you are going to build or remodel next spring, you'll make a mistake no matter how wonderful a heating system you may have, if you do not plan for at least one open fire. Wood is more picturesque but there is more heat in coal and you can leave it for hours.

But be sure you have a properly inspected chimney.

Make Friends With Jack Frost If You Want Beauty Dress Warmly; Don't Try To Defy Cold Weather

BY NINON

NEW YORK—The whole philosophy of being beautiful, or of looking beautiful, which is the real trick, is to work with rather than against the weather.

Every season makes its contribution to beauty, and takes its toll as well unless we guard against it.

Take, for instance, this season, of ice and snow that is settling down upon us. It can mean cold feet, chapped hands, a nutmeg complexion and the mottled color effect so appropriate for the sausage and so disadvantageous to any woman younger than 100—or it can mean bright eyes, hair that is alive and lustrous, a complexion that won't rub off and a vitality that is positively compelling.

It's all up to the individual whether she makes Jack Frost her beauty agent or her arch foe.

BEAUTY STANDARDS CHANGE

While it isn't so fashionable to spend the winter in the north, it is a very wise course from the point of view of health and beauty.

You must, of course, realize that standards of beauty change with the season. Your winter ideal is sturdier, more colorful, and more alive.

So, leading up to this subject of beauty at zero, let me begin with externals. You can't be beautiful if you look frozen to death. You must suggest a warmth and comfort that defies the thermometer. Contradictions and paradoxes always attract.

So provide yourself with sufficient protection from the cold. No, I am not suggesting red flannels. With our modern system of ventilation I am quite in sympathy with silk undergarments and socks, if you like. For in frocks that are from 70 to 80 degrees, they are quite adequate.

But your outer garments must be warm. Your coat, whether of fur or wool must be wind proof, and so that you can be comfortable on the coldest day. Whereas in some cases when comfort and so-called fashion compromise, I believe that the first essential of the winter coat should be warmth and protection, and that colors and details should get second consideration.

The prejudice against the galosh has changed to a whole-hearted prohibition. It is no longer considered smart to go about with wet shoes and muddied stockings, whereas it is definitely swagger to appear in dry shoes.

If your leg cannot stand the galosh—well, it should be reduced until it can, and we will take up that problem later.

Wool stockings are purely up to you and your conscience. These thin layers of wool that may be worn under the silk stockings of a young child seem to me to offer a very comfortable substitute.

So the first beauty hint is to provide yourself with adequate protection from the weather so that you can get out in it and enjoy skating, tobogganing, and all the winter sports. Winter is a great season if you attack it right.

The next important consideration is your diet. It takes considerable more energy to keep the body going in winter than in summer. You need a substantial diet. The best diet is a diet of fruits and vegetables. The vitamins in the winter vegetables are the most essential. Just as necessary to your body health, so begin your day with orange juice, grapefruit, stewed prunes or any other fruit that is your particular delight, and don't consider that ham and eggs are adequate without it.

You must not forget the cold and the danger of colds, influenza, diphtheria, and the like. These are the common winter ailments. Specific difficulties of the winter and how to treat them will be taken up in later articles.

KROMER WILLING TO HELP FINANCE EVERYDAY BASEBALL

Kaukauna Baseball Impresario Thinks Organized Game Would Pay in Valley

Kaukauna—George "Stormy" Kromer, former Kaukauna baseball manager and more recently manager of the Blackwell, Okla. baseball team in the Southwestern league has come to the front with what he considers a real proposition for local baseball fans. At the present time there is considerable agitation in the valley for every day baseball. Mr. Kromer says the time is ripe for that kind of ball and that he is willing to put up a dollar of his own money for every dollar put up by any group of townspeople. The money to be used for putting a team representing Kaukauna on the field. Mr. Kromer would be willing to put up $2,500 or more if any group of townspeople would put up the same amount, his only stipulation being that he be made manager of the team. "Stormy" is an ardent baseball man and he would like nothing better than to see Kaukauna in every day ball.

Otto Borchardt, Milwaukee baseball manager, is interested in organizing every day ball in the valley. The loop is said to be ideal. Cities that would be included in the loop would be Green Bay, Kaukauna, Appleton, Menasha, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Manitowish and Sheboygan. Mr. Kromer points out that a team starting at Green Bay would have only traveled a distance of 205 miles thus making the traveling expenses very low. It was nothing to travel a hundred miles or more in the Southwestern league in making the jump from one town to another, Mr. Kromer said.

Under the proposed plan each team would play three games at home and three away each week. Those away would be played with one team only. Mondays would be rest day. With expenses so low Mr. Kromer believed that every day ball would make money in the valley. The week day game would start at about 4 o'clock, thus making it possible for those who work during the day to attend the games.

It is possible that if Kaukauna townsmen refuse to accept Mr. Kromer's offer that he will make the same proposition to any other town in the proposed loop. If every day ball falls through Mr. Kromer plans on putting a team in the newly organized Nebraska rookie league.

OSHKOSH MAN GETS IN TROUBLE HERE

Business Deal for Coat and Vest Turn Out Badly for Visitor

"Shoot 'im in the pants—the coat and vest ain't paid for," was the cry which, according to police, might have rung out after John O'Deal, Oshkosh, partly completed the rejuvenation of his wardrobe at an Appleton second hand store Saturday afternoon.

According to the story the Oshkosh man entered negotiations for the purchase of a coat and vest; satisfied with one outfit he offered a check in payment.

The proprietor of the store was loath to cash the check and make change so O'Deal is alleged to have insouciantly remarked—

"Wait just a minute, I'll cash it at the hotel next door."

Some time later Patrolman Joseph Rankin arrested O'Deal. In the prisoner's pocket, Chief George T. Prim said, was found $15—he was alleged to be wearing the unpaid for coat and vest.

The check was signed John Sigl and was drawn for $35. Investigation of the stranger's financial and commercial activities was underway Monday morning.

STAGE And SCREEN

"MYSTERY CLUB" AT FISCHER
APPLETON IS RAFFLING
AND FUNNY TOO

If you care to real entertainment, then by all means see "The Mystery Club," which is to be shown at Fischer's Appleton Theater on Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week. It is a thrilling comedy drama with a most unusual turn of plot having to do with an organization of millionaires known as "The Mystery Club," the members of which believe that they are able to commit all sorts of deceptions without being discovered by the police, whose methods they deride.

To this end they agree that six members are to be selected, each of whom posts a large sum to be forfeited in the event that his scheme goes awry. In the midst of their plans crime after crime is committed by some mysterious agency. The members of the club suspect each other and are compelled to spend thousands of dollars in order to divert the suspicion of the police and outside world from the organization.

The action is fast and stirring until the very last, when a surprising twist upsets every calculation. Director Herbert Blaché did a masterly job on "The Mystery Club." He has given us a picture that is "different" in every sense of the word.

A two reel comedy. News and other selected short subjects will be shown.

ADAPTION OF FAMOUS NOVEL FOR THE SCREEN

"The Clean Heart," or "The Cruelties of Life," which will be the attraction at The New Bijou today and Tuesday, is an adaptation of A. S. M. Hutchinson's well known novel. It tells the story of a man who through an effort to succeed and win fame, forgot to give any thought to relaxation and pleasure, thinking only of self, with a resultant loss of reasoning faculties. In a search for the happiness and joy that he had lost, many dramatic events occur which make a strong melodrama. Percy Marmont has the role of Wiford, the overworked editor, and Otis Harlan is cast as Puddi, a lovable vagabond and philosopher, who tries to show Wiford the road to happiness. Marguerite de la Motte portrays Essie, the girl who brings sunshine to the life of the hero. The production was directed by J. Stuart Blackton for Vitagraph.

Wins Essay Contest
John O. Younger, a pupil in the sixth grade at the Lincoln school, was the winner of an essay contest conducted in the class, according to an announcement made by Miss Kathleen Kimball, teacher of the grade. The subject of the compositions was a trip made recently to the Pure Milk Co plant in Appleton. In the essay the boy describes the process of treating the milk at the factory.

Secretary To Governor Step Seldom Completed

Milwaukee (CP)—Wisconsin history looks back to Civil War times to find a precedent for the scene it will witness next month when Fred R. Zimmerman leaves the office of secretary of state to assume the role of chief executive of the Badger state.

Not since the days of Lucius Fairchild of Madison, who became governor during the Civil War reconstruction period, has the state expressed such confidence in a man who earned his spurs in the office of secretary of state.

Fairchild, with a brilliant record in the Civil War in which he rose to lieutenant colonel, was elected secretary of state in 1867 and after serving two years, was elevated to the governor's chair in which he served with distinction for four years.

The post war governor followed in the footsteps of James T. Lewis of Columbus who traveled the same route in reaching the post of the state's chief executive, as had Louis P. Harvey, and William A. Barstow before him.

Barstow, of Waukesha, third governor of Wisconsin was elected secretary of state in 1859 and became governor in 1861 to relinquish the post after two years.

Louis P. Harvey, the tragic figure of the Civil War whose term in the governor's office was terminated after three months was elected secretary of state in 1869 and succeeded Governor

Alex W. Randall two years later. Harvey fell from a boat and drowned April 19, 1862.

James O'Davidson of Soldiers Grove, who became governor when Governor LaFollette resigned to accept the office of United States senator in 1906; Arthur McArthur and James T. Lewis were the only lieutenant governors to become the chief executive of the state. Davidson was the only former state treasurer to win the governorship. He was state treasurer from 1899 to 1903 and lieutenant governor during part of the LaFollette regime, 1903-1906.

Not until Wisconsin choose John J. Blaine as governor in 1920, had the state ever been guided by a former attorney general. Blaine, who first attracted notice as a state senator from his home district of Grant county, was attorney general for two years prior to his election as Governor Philip's successor.

SATURDAY WAS BIGGEST DAY AT POSTOFFICE

Incoming and outgoing mail reached a high mark, even for the holiday season, at the Appleton postoffice Saturday, according to Postmaster William H. Zuehlke. The increase in the number of parcels sent and received was much greater than the increase in the number of greetings Mr. Zuehlke said. This indicated that patrons were mailing packages earlier but were neglecting the cards until the last few days.

While even the early mailing of packages is a great help, Mr. Zuehlke said, the early mailing of cards also is essential for speedy and sure delivery. There is a great improvement over the last few years, however, and it is hoped that the by rush on the day before Christmas will be at least somewhat lesser if not entirely avoided.

Four clerks were kept busy at the parcel post window Saturday, selling stamps and checking parcels. Business at the local office probably will reach its peak about Thursday.

After an engagement lasting 25 years, John Wilsner and Mary Marshall were married at a Clapton church in London.

FRANK WALSH TAKES FIFTH IN SACRAMENTO GOLF TOURNEY

Local Pro Scores 294 To Beat Out Al Watrous And Cruickshank In Big Meet

Joe Turnesa, New York Star, Wins First Money With Card of 287

Frank Walsh, professional at Butte Des Morts country club and leading pro golfer of Wisconsin, started his winter campaign in the west and south by taking a fifth place to land in the money in the Sacramento $2,500 open tournament, held the last weekend in Sacramento, Calif. Joe Turnesa, New York, lead the field with a card of 287 and he received $600 for his efforts.

In finishing fifth Walsh presented a card of 294 to beat out Al Watrous, Grand Rapids, pro champion of Michigan, who appeared on the Butte Des Morts links last year with Walter Hagen, Walsh and Ken Dickinson. Watrous and Bobby Cruickshank of New York shared sixth place with 295 each. Walsh was a stroke behind fourth, two behind third and four behind second.

A brilliant 69 on the last 18 holes Sunday brought victory to Turnesa. Eddie Loos of Chicago was tied with Turnesa for the lead at the end of 55 holes, but slipped badly on the last lap and turned in a card of 290 for second place.

Finishing playing by Harold Sanderson of Deal, N. J., on the last 18 holes, Turnesa, out of third place with a 292. Melhorn was fourth with 293. Abe Espinosa turned in a 68 on the final 18 holes to equal the course record for one round. He turned in a 303 for the 72 holes.

Fall River, Mass.—(P)—James Connors, 21, died in a hospital Sunday night from concussion of the brain received in a basketball game in Central Falls, R. I., Saturday night.

Defeated Badgers Prep For Marquette Battle

Madison—Smashing under the 27 to 21 defeat handed them by the Franklin College five here in the opening game of the season last Friday evening, Wisconsin's basketball squad is laboring overtime to prepare for the invasion of Milwaukee Wednesday, when Marquette will be taken on at the Auditorium.

MANY ALL-WESTERN CAGERS IN ACTION IN HAWK-IRISH GO

Notre Dame's Great Team Invades Lair of 1925-26 Big Ten Champs

Iowa City, Ia.—Notre Dame will impart a four-veteran basketball team, two members of which bear all-western tags, into the state of Iowa Monday.

Football teams at South Bend get most of the publicity. But last winter the Irish Cagers won a season of twenty games, including contests from four Big Ten foes. And with Courvoys, the guard who was placed on the all-western team as McConnell's running mate; Johnny Nyikos, all-western center; Dahlman, a guard on the third all-western team and McNally, a third year forward, the Notre Dame team will give the Iowans another dazzling example of Hoosier basketball.

The rapid-scoring Nyikos, center, must be held in check if the Hawkeyes are to win. A battle of all-western men will probably result for the shadow of Nyikos may be McConnell. Even the name of the star conjures of galling memories in the mind of Coach Barry for, in 1923, a brother of Nyikos on the Indiana university team shot the basket which beat the Hawkeyes out of close Big Ten title.

Iowa has never beaten Notre Dame on the court. The score was 24-23 four years ago and 17-16 last winter.

PACKERS AND BEARS BATTLE TO 3-3 TIE

Purdy Gets Dropkick from Midfield but Driscoll Knots Score

Chicago—More than 10,000 shivering gridiron loyalists braved the bleak wintry weather here Sunday to watch the Green Bay Packers and the Chicago Bears battle to a 3 to 3 tie in a National Professional league football game, played on Soldier's field.

Both eleven's battled evenly during the first half, with the plunging of Knop, Bear fullback, and the punting of Lewellen, Green Bay halfback, featuring the play.

Forward passing attempts failed to materialize in substantial gains. Until the final quarter, Lewellen's punts were averaging about 70 yards.

Purdy's drop kick in the third period was the sensation of the contest. With the ball on the Bears' 45-yard line, the diminutive Packer field general dropped back and booted a perfect drop kick.

With six minutes left to play, the Bears tied the count. Driscoll punted to Lambeau, who had succeeded Purdy as quarterback because of injuries.

BOYS' CAGE LEAGUE OPENS AT KIMBERLY

Kimberly—Gossens' Shields defeated Le May's Buckeyes 15-8; Vander Zanden's Bears whipped Red's Aces 15-4; and Schenck's Midgits lost to Vic's Frenchmen 6-3 Saturday morning in the opening games of the Kimberly Boys' Saturday Morning Basketball league.

Vander Zanden's Bears took the lead in sportsmanship with a 1,000 mark; Le May's Buckeyes, Gossens' Shields and Vic's Frenchmen came next with 995 apiece, and Schenck's Midgits and Red's Aces got 567 each.

Gossens starred for his team with six baskets and a free throw and Le May with two baskets was highest scorer for the Buckeyes in the first game.

In the second game Huntington caged four ringers for the Bears and Schertz and Melcher caged a basket apiece for the Aces. Bourassa caged two baskets for the Midgits in the third game.

The best battle of the day took place between Rusty's Wildcats and Hopkin's Stars, the two teams in the junior league. The Wildcats took the Stars into camp by a 24 count.

Rusty's Wildcats came through with a perfect mark in sportsmanship and Hopkin's Stars followed up with 255.

The team will leave Madison Wednesday night for Milwaukee. After the Marquette encounter, that evening the squad will disband for the Christmas holidays, with instructions to return a few days after Christmas to prepare for the DePaul game Dec. 26 and the Syracuse classic at Cleveland, Jan. 3.

Wagner's boys, captained on the frequent fouling of Wisconsin, and secured the majority of the free throws, which in the end won the game for them. Meanwell's team held the ad-Jan. 3.

STARTS STRONG

FRANK WALSH

Frank Walsh, pro of the Butte des Morts country club and leading pro golfer of Wisconsin, started his winter campaign of the west and south Sunday by finishing fifth in the Sacramento $2,500 open tournament.

His score of 294 added some extra change to his purse and enabled him to whip Al Watrous, Michigan pro champ, and Bobby Cruickshank, who tied for sixth with a 295. Joe Turnesa, New York pro, took the meet with a 287 to garner $600.

DELANEY FAVORITE OVER KENOSHA BOY

Gorman, Though Never K. Q'd, Regarded as Trial Horse for Heavies

Jersey City, N. J.—(P)—Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., Monday night rides to the heavyweight elimination wars with husky Bud Gorman of Kenosha, Wis., as the first trial horse of his campaign.

They met in the feature bout of ten rounds with no official decision at a benefit show for the Jersey City armory for a Christmas fund under the promotion of Humbert J. Fugazy.

Delaney rules a 2 to 1 favorite, although Gorman will have a weight advantage of more than 20 pounds.

While the fight marks Delaney's official enlistment in the heavyweight cause, his record shows previous experience in the ring with heavier men.

Prior to his lifting of the light heavyweight crown from Paul Berlenbach, Delaney defeated King Solomon, Romero Rojas and young Bob Fitzsimmons, heavyweights.

Gorman, a ring campaigner of ten years' experience, has never been knocked out. His record shows victories over Bob Lawson two round knockout; over Carl Cater, ten rounds; Harry Persson, Sweden, foul 5 rounds; and Jack Sharkey, 10 rounds.

He beat Sharkey a year ago but in a return fight lost on a foul in the first round. Gorman was in the A. E. F. and lost a bout to Gene Tunney. Later he was one of Tunney's sparring partners.

The ten-round semi final will give Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, another tune up fight before he defends his bantamweight crown next month against Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y.

The titleholder expects to play his fist music on Pete Mack, local featherweight.

The Delaney-Gorman bout is the first of the two heavyweight eliminations this week. Harry Persson will meet Jim Maloney of Boston at Madison Square garden New York Wednesday night.

Maloney is a 2 to 1 favorite.

TWELVE CORNERS DROP GAME TO SEYMOUR FIVE

Twelve Corners basketball team dropped a close game to Seymour on the latter's floor Friday evening, 28 to 22. The Corners led at half time, 16 to 14, but the home team gradually forged ahead as the game advanced.

A return game will be played at Twelve Corners Sunday evening, Dec. 26. Twelve Corners and Shiocton fives will meet at the former place Wednesday evening, Dec. 29.

SATURDAY GAMES

Coated Paper 23, Riverside Paper 9, Citizens Bank 17, Co. D 12.

Citizens Bank and Coated Paper Co. teams of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial loop advanced to a tie for third place with two other squads Saturday evening when they defeated the Riverside and Co. D squads.

After the first half, which ended 9-4 for the Coated, that squad had little trouble defeating the Riverside men. The second game was a battle from start to finish with the strengthened Co. D squad giving the Bankers a game fight to the end.

In the opener the losers were handicapped by the absence of Dan Courtney, forward, and it showed up in their play, though the Coated squad played fine ball. Bowers and Kneip, Coated forwards, furnished a strong offense, each dropping four ringers for 16 points. Eggert featured on defense.

Frieders and Gardner played the best for the losers.

In the second game the Bankers led 8-6 at the half and were behind a few times in the tilt. The Guardsmen brought a strengthened lineup into play and kept the Bank crew on its toes throughout.

W. Voecks was the offensive star of the winners while C. Voecks starred at guard. For the losers Ratzman and Muenster played strong offensive games with W. and C. Schultz playing strong guarding.

W. Schultz sunk a finger from well beyond midfloor in the first period.

Bowlers Prepare For Annual State Tourney

W. F. Fenske, Secretary, W. B. A. The really big time of the bowling game in the state of Wisconsin is the annual state tournament which has grown to such proportions during the last few years that it is really classed as one of the two best and biggest tournaments of the year.

With an entry of 1,270 five-men teams and corresponding minor events last January when the tournament was held in Milwaukee, the state tournament stepped into the front ranks of big athletic events of the year.

Twelve hundred and seventy teams means 6,350 men who are in this athletic contest and there is no other event in the country that can compare with this tournament in size.

From all sections of Wisconsin beginning at Superior and clearing a territory as far south as Beloit, and from La Crosse to Milwaukee in the other direction, this huge entry is recruited, as Wisconsin is the best bowling state in the Union with the best organized co-operation of any of our state communities.

The beginners are in evidence in this tournament, as it is essentially a beginners tournament, with an entry fee of only $2.00 per man in each event, placing the total entry of $5.00 per man in all the three events, within reach of every bowler in Wisconsin.

It has been a wise move of the state officials to keep the entry fee down to this low figure, and this combined with the fact that it is a tournament of personal service has built up the entry to the splendid proportions reached last season.

The Silver Jubilee Tournament will be held this coming January and February in Racine, and this city is the hot-bed of bowling in southeastern Wisconsin.

The entries do not close until January 16th, 1927, but the bowlers are urged by the officials to either make reservations or send their entry to secretary William F. Fenske, 137 Second-st., Milwaukee, who now is lining up support for the show.

The tournament will be held at Ed. Mandernack's alleys in Racine, and the bowlers who attend are in for a regular good time as they all know "Big Ed."

H. M. Wriston tendered Coach Catlin a contract which was accepted by the former Chicago University star. The contract called for an increase in salary with the Blue mentor devoting more time to his football duties than during the past fall.

Catlin will be assisted by A. C. Denny, director of athletics, who is at Columbia this year. Letters were awarded to 17 players on the 1926 team which tied with Carroll for the state title and was undefeated in the Wisconsin-Illinois conference.

Talks were given by Coach Catlin and President Wriston. Letters were awarded to Capt. Counsell, Jessup, Hilton, Hillman, Bayer, Capt. elect Ott, Weinkauff, Johnson, Schauer, Hipke, Capt. elect, Bloomer, Briese, Heidemann, Hunter, Nason, Barfell and Steensland.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
JUDITH MARTIN, young college teacher, arouses the enmity of DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN, by siding with the student radicals, of whom ERIC WATERS is the leader.

DR. PETER DORN, of the astronomy department, is attracted to Judith and anxious to make peace between her and the dean.

MYRA ALDRICH is jealous of Judith because of Eric's attentions to her.

"KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger tries to blackmail Mrs. Brown, and Judith, befriending her, asks Eric to silence Shea.

When Shea is found dead in a stream, with a letter addressed to Eric, in his pocket, Eric is arrested as a material witness.

Mrs. Brown offers an outlandish bribe for Eric, endangering her own good name.

Judith is angry with Eric for coming to her classroom half intoxicated, and refuses to speak to him.

Dean Brown tries to force her to take part in the great reform campaign he is planning.

When Eric sees Judith with Will Wetherell, his frat brother, in a tea shop, he calls her "Miss JUDAS," mockingly. She goes home almost hysterical, and finds a white envelope under the door.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLIII

The white square lay undisturbed on the carpet as Judith slammed the door and hung herself on the bed, sobbing with the racking violence of a woman unaccustomed to weeping. She lay face down, while late afternoon shadows gathered in the room and the sound of the usual pre-dinner Charleston floated up from the parlor.

At last she sat up and looked disconsolately at her. Her eyes fell on the white envelope, by the door. Hastily she dragged herself off the bed and picked it up.

"Dear Miss Martin," the letter began, "won't you drop in this evening for a talk with me? I have many things to say to you, if you care to listen. And I'll give you a cup of tea to flavor conversation."

It was signed, "Eve Gerhart."

Laying the letter down, Judith switched on the light and took a look at herself in the mirror.

Her eyes were circled and red-rimmed, but not beyond the remedy of cold water and powder.

While the clatter of forks and knives went on downstairs, she dressed and brushed her hair. Then, slipping down the stairs, she let herself out the front door and stood in the dusk of College road.

The campus was a dim labyrinth of buildings and shrubs, indistinct and mysterious. Judith entered it with a little tightening of the lips and a frown of the head. But she walked more quickly and threw a glance over her shoulder now and then.

Suddenly she found herself at the place where Shea had accosted her many weeks ago. Shadows loomed across the very spot where he had appeared, to block her path. Shea was dead, but it seemed as though his figure must spring again from between the bushes to menace her.

For a moment she paused, gazing wide-eyed at the path ahead. Then, by an effort of will, she plunged into the darkness and came out into the open quadrangle at a run, and on Campus avenue, she found a taxi for the long drive out Granville road.

Eve's little blue-eyed maid opened the door for Judith, and she stepped into the firelit room. For a moment she thought it was empty. But over the back of the fireside divan gleamed the top of Eve's golden head, with a wreath of smoke curling upwards around it. As the maid took Judith's wraps, Eve lifted an arm above her head and beckoned lazily.

Deep in the cushioned divan, in an attitude of careless luxury, Eve was smoking a long cigarette. Her Chinese lounging robe with its jewel colors against black satin glowed under the red reflection of the fire.

She waved Judith to a chair. "I'm glad you've come. I thought you would."

Judith smiled. "Your letter made me curious, just as you intended it should."

Eve slipped the cigarette into the fire. "Judith," she said, "tell me what's been happening to make you look as you do."

Judith flushed. "I didn't know I looked any different from usual," she began. But Eve's smile checked her.

"It isn't much fun, sitting on the fence, is it, Judith?" Her smile was tinged with mockery.

Judith frowned. "I'm not sitting on the fence. I'm trying to walk down the road minding my own business. But I'm not allowed to."

The radicals and the stand-patters are both throwing stones at me."

Eve nodded. "I know. You'll be forced into one camp or the other. Judith, which is it going to be?"

Judith looked up impatiently. "It will be neither. I'm not going to get involved in this struggle any more than I am already. But I don't see much cause to worry. Eric's troubles will die down. People have almost forgotten the murder scrape."

"Yes," Eve agreed. "But Eric hasn't forgotten it. He's in a distressing state of mind—bitter and cynical and determined to wreak vengeance on society at large. He feels the university should have given him the benefit of the doubt in a case like the Shea affair. He believes the dean's personal malice was at work there."

Judith was staring at the fire. "I'm sure it was. I've had dealings with Timothy Brown, and they've given me a pretty good idea of the lengths he'd go to, to crush anyone that defied him."

Eve was looking at her gravely. "You know his wife, I think. Prudence Brown is a living monument to the dean's inventive cruelty."

Judith nodded, but said nothing.

"You should have seen her when she came here as a bride," Eve continued. "She was straight and slim, with some of the fire and verve that one associates with a pagan nymph. I thought she was in love with Timothy—she looked at him and listened to him in such wide-eyed wonder."

"It was terrible to see the change coming. It showed in her eyes first."

From being wide and limpid, they became merely vague and blurry. Then she began to walk with tremulous little steps that tried to keep pace with the movement of the dean's short legs.

"She gave up the blue gowns she had delighted in, and took to gray and black. Her hats crept back from their captivating droop over one eye, to perch staidly on the crown of her head. In a few months you would never have known Prudence Brown for the bride that Timothy brought back with him from her home upstate."

Judith had been listening intently. "I know. One of the things worrying me now, Eve, is that Mrs. Brown, after accepting and giving friendship, has broken away from me completely. She even refused to see me the last time I called. The dean wasn't at home, so it couldn't have been his fault."

"Hm-m," commented Eve. "That's interesting. I had a feeling that Prudence, having dared to accept a friendship, would cling to it for dear life. She's a horribly solitary person. Perhaps the habit of solitude has grown so strong that she became afraid she had trusted you too far and was obliged to pull back."

"But I asked you to come because I wanted to talk of other things, Judith. I'm desperately worried about Eric. And I can't lift a finger to help him."

"What now?" asked Judith, in some surprise. "Things with him are about as usual, aren't they? He's tearing around, slighting his courses, drinking too much now and then and de-lousing against the injustice of fate."

Eve smiled. "That's all very true. But you can't dismiss it like that. There's something else—and it's terribly dangerous." She leaned forward and looked into Judith's puzzled eyes.

"Do you mean to say, Judith, that you don't know what doings are abroad?"

Judith shook her head. "You're alarming me," she said.

Eve paused a moment, then spoke slowly. "I can't tell you. I can only urge you to make up your quarrel with Eric, before he commits himself to irrevocable folly. Get him to tell you."

Judith stared. "I don't understand her," she said.

"I know," said Eve. "I am a rebel. I've stuck out my tongue at criticism and kicked the shins of convention and had a grand time generally. But never yet did I crusade for freedom. Self-determination is all I ask. I'd just as soon be a fanatic deacon as a fanatic rebel."

"Besides, I've paid the penalties blithely. For there ARE penalties. Some day I'll be old, and all the nice masculine adherents of my freedom will slink away, one by one. Who knows? Heaven forbid that I should ever regret anything. But if I do, nobody'll ever know it."

Judith was silent. "I'm afraid I couldn't help matters, even if I did make up with Eric," she said, after a time. "I haven't much influence with him."

Eve looked at her shrewdly. "If you went about it right, you could rule him with a rod of iron—and Dr. Peter Dorn too. I tell you, you can do what you please with any man who's in love with you, and with some who aren't."

Judith sat in half-smiling silence.

Several Closed Years Urged In Deer States

BY B. A. CLAFLIN

Rumors are rife that a closed season for deer, to extend over a number of years, is contemplated. Naturally, as the cover decreases, so does the supply of these animals in any given locality, and, consequently, while they are not as plentiful as they were in the days of the forests, they are in no immediate danger of extermination.

It is a mooted question whether the present one buck law is the proper measure. I believe hunters who follow the chase in Wisconsin are almost unanimously in favor of a law permitting the killing of one deer of either sex, and irrespective of age or size.

Pennsylvania has a one buck law and those who are in a position to speak authoritatively maintain that this provision has been chiefly instrumental in restoring the deer to numbers that afford excellent shooting, especially in the mountainous regions of that state. Some years ago Pennsylvania, through indifferent management, had so depreciated as a game state that it was seldom spoken of and the hunters who formerly frequented its covers, moved on up into Michigan and Wisconsin.

However, upon the election of Pinchot as governor, conservation matters took on a change for the better. He inaugurated drastic revisions and restrictions which bore fruit immediately. As a result Pennsylvania is now the annual mecca of thousands of sportsmen who are well rewarded no matter what class of game they seek. Not only are deer and bears plentiful, but also the wild turkey which, prior to Pinchot's reign, was practically unknown north of the Mason and Dixon line.

In the theory it appears that for every doe killed the succeeding year's supply is bound to suffer to the extent of at least one, and frequently two new members. Different old timers, some of whom forty or more years ago, killed as many as a hundred deer in one year while acting as regularly employed hunters for the big lumber camps, look at the matter in a different light. They claim that, with the present slaughter of bucks, the number of barren does is constantly increasing, and that the decimation in the deer ranks is about on a par with what it would be if the killing of one animal of either sex were permitted.

From now on careful consideration will be given to important matters of this kind and, in view of what is stated above, it will be interesting to learn how Mr. Zimmerman feels toward the subject. He is an experienced deer hunter and, besides, will have the benefit of opinion of old timers who have lived their lives in the north woods.

As proof that the deer are far from being scarce let us state that on December 6th this year, the train from Laona brought into Green Bay three hundred bucks, and most of them were unusually large specimens.

If there should become a dearth of these animals in Wisconsin it does not follow that they are liable to extinction, for there are plenty of regions from which they may be procured for breeding stock. As for example, the Kaibab forests along the Colorado River are harboring at the present time over 30,000 deer.

SEYMOUR SCHOOLS ARE CLOSED FOR HOLIDAYS

Separate programs presented by high school and grade school pupils at Seymour and a parent-teachers' meeting after the festival marked the closing of schools there for the Christmas holidays Friday afternoon.

The schools will reopen the first Monday in January.

County Nurse Marie Klein addressed the adults after the programs. Her talk was confined to general health subjects. It was reported, in the relation of health to school work.

KIWANIANS TO ANSWER SPECIAL QUESTIONNAIRE

A questionnaire has been received by the local Kiwanis club which is to be filled out and returned to the committee on Business Standards of the Kiwanis International which is planning the development of a modern and adequate code of business ethics. More than 100,000 members of Kiwanis clubs of the United States and Canada will assist in preparing the code.

Some of the questions to be regarded by local Kiwanians are: "What forms of unfair competition do you find most wide spread and harmful?" "What forms of misrepresentation of goods do you observe, either by advertisement or by direct salesmanship?" "What business practices are in danger of leading to restrictive legislation of a type which might be prevented by voluntarily raising of the standards of business by business men themselves?" "What forms of price cutting do you consider unfair and injurious?"

The first municipal public conveyance was used in Nantes, France, in 1825. A few years later the omnibus was introduced in London.

The Home Hot Blast Furnace

Free Book "Oh John! How Thoughtful"

"Here is our five-year heating warranty this morning, direct from HOME Furnace Company at Holland, Michigan. See, it is signed by Mr. James DeYoung himself, the General Manager. It guarantees to keep us cozy for at least five years."

"I really think, John, that I could not have picked out a nicer Christmas present had I tried."

"You will never know the hours I toiled over the old furnace when you were away; the tons of coal and ashes I shoveled; the dust in the house, and the extra work."

Since 1919 the HOME has proved to be one of the best Christmas presents we ever had. It is specially noted for comfort, convenience, cleanliness and is a real fuel saver. Our neighbors have used four tons so far and we have only used two—with much better service. We never fire more than two or three times in twenty-four hours; never hunt for the shaker as it is attached to the furnace; never worry about the house getting cold; and live dirt and dust, and no smoke. Our entire family, including "Skeezie," our pet kitten, who sleeps on the furnace pipes, have had excellent health. One neighbor and two more because "HOME" Fires Burn Brightest."

Spit, Spat and Sput

Have you heard them? . . . They are the triplets that make such a noise in your carburetor these winter days . . . Spit, Spat and Sput are a troublesome trio as bothersome as a sore thumb . . . They get together and sing their little tune of discontent whenever you pull your choke on a frosty morning . . . If you use low test gasoline Spit, Spat and Sput will stay with you for half the way down to work . . . If you use De Baufer High Test Gasoline or Benzol for winter driving comfort, you don't need to pull the choke but a very little, and Spit, Spat and Sput die a natural death. . . . This trio can't utter a sound when the carburetor is happy with De Baufer Gasoline . . . It not only outwits Spit, Spat and Sput but it helps you and your motor to start the day right!

Only A Few Days Left To Join Good Fellows Club

Well, folks, here is that little coupon about which a great deal has been written the last two weeks. Those of you who haven't clipped it and sent it in with your membership in the Good Fellows club, had better do it now before it is too late. Remember this, appeal will close next Friday evening, and by that time $2,000 should be in the Good Fellows' treasury to carry on the relief work at Christmas time and during the winter. Won't you help make some poor family happy on Christmas day by joining the club. Each ticket containing food, clothing and some toys and playthings for the poor youngsters will be sent to the homes of the poor on the day before Christmas. It requires a lot of money to do this for about 225 poor and deserving families. And less than $700 has been paid in this fund. Let's step on it today and get in that membership!

CITY'S SCHOOLS GIVEN $407,000 FOR ENTIRE YEAR

Appleton Will Raise $325,000 of This Amount by Taxes.
Officials Report

School expenses from July, 1926, to July, 1927, will amount to $107,267.50, according to the school budget recently allowed by the common council. Sources of income of the schools to meet this budget come from state and county taxes, special state help, tuition, the city treasurer's balance from last year, the help given by the vocational school in paying the salary of the school officer, and city taxes. The assets other than taxes will be $97,155.51. A tax levy of $325,000 will be made, the council decided.

Special state help is given for the senior high school, manual training, home economics, commercial, the deaf, and defective speech work, and the opportunity room.

Salaries allowed to teachers, janitors and janitresses was $302,725. and the remainder of the budget was under the heading of supplies. The greatest amount will be spent on the grade teachers who receive $90,150 of the $268,560 granted for teachers salaries. In the high schools, $74,300 was for the three junior and $15,200 for the senior. In general control, which includes salaries of the superintendent, the assistant superintendent and office help a sum of $10,060 was allowed. Other items were: music, $2,650; drawing, $1,650; opportunity room, $5,050; nurses, $3,390 and transient officer $2,200.

SUBSTITUTES GET $2,400

A sum of $2,400 was allowed for substitute teachers' salaries. Of this $1,550 was set for the grade schools, $600 for the junior high schools, and $250 for the senior high school. Another item in the budget provides for extra teachers, which might be necessary if an unusually large influx of pupils came during the year. There was no expectation of this need in the senior high school, but for the grade, $2,550 was allowed and for the junior high schools, $1,200.

It has been the custom to give grade teachers salary increases if they took professional work at summer school in some institution of higher education. For this purpose the council allowed $2,100. Janitors and janitresses were granted salaries of $23,725. This was divided into grades, $11,335; junior high schools, $9,450; and senior high school, $5,100.

Supplies for instruction require $13,374 for the year, and this is put into four groups: grades, $5,639; junior high schools, $4,400; senior high schools, $3,175; and general control, $2,160. Janitors' supplies for the grade, junior high and senior high schools are $2,610, and music supplies for the first two groups are $1,200. The senior high school does not ask for money for these supplies from the school funds. There is $300 provided for nurses' supplies.

For the school libraries there is $7,400 allotted for the purchase of books and magazines. The junior high schools were given $5,000 as compared with $1,700 for the grades, and $700 for the senior high school. This larger sum was explained that it was not known how much money would be needed in these schools, and the amount was set tentatively. The policy of the administration has been to defer buying books for these new schools until it was known just which would be of the greatest value.

The school year begins and closes in July whereas the city's business is transacted from January to January. This means that six months of the time the schools are operating, no funds have yet been appropriated by the city, and when there is not a sufficient surplus, money is borrowed by the schools. The interest on the loan this year was $2,550.

HIGH INSURANCE COSTS

Taxes to the schools for oiling the streets, etc., were $635. In the past under the district school system separate insurance policies were taken out by each school board for the schools under their control. Last year there were 222 separate policies, it was said. An insurance program was drawn up this fall, and all of the schools are insured under one type of policy. These fall due in series, and the premiums in the ensuing years will be less than for 1926 and 1927 as all of the groups were necessarily paid the first year. The insurance premiums were $9,890. Grades were allotted $1,340; junior high schools, $7,500; and the senior high school, $2,500. Water, light and telephone bills for the year are $7,875; teaching and janitor equipment, $11,935; freight, drayage and express, $200; and miscellaneous, $3,750. Three hundred dollars was allowed for snow removal; $1,500 for rent of the Moose hall, which is used for music instruction in the senior high school; $200 for the weekly deliveries of books for supplementary reading to the schools; and $775 for equipment for the auxiliary office. For medical inspection in the junior high schools, $150 was granted. This is inclined to take care of students who seek permission to be excused from gymnasium work. To equip and supply the store room in the Lincoln school building for the use of all the schools in the city a sum of $1,805.50 was expended.

New London—Christmas services at New London churches this year, is accompanied with the usual interest. The first of the annual celebrations of the birthday of the Christ child was given Friday night. First Congregational church by children of the church school, while the morning service hour was devoted to the presentation of the cantata, "The Light Eternal." The choir was under the direction of Mrs. C. B. Reuter, with E. Luis Reuter at the piano. Mr. Reuter played a number of selections on the pipe organ. The church was decorated in Christmas greens and garlands, and the tall lighted tree added much to the beauty of the service. Soloists of the morning were Mrs. H. B. Christy, Mrs. Rudd Smith, Miss Rose Edminster, Herbert Ritchie and Rev. H. P. Freeling. C. B. Reuter appeared in a trio, while Mr. Pennington and Mr. Freeling sang a baritone and tenor duet. Another interesting arrangement of voices was the number in which Mrs. Christy, Mrs. Smith, Miss Edminster and Miss Irma Reuter sang.

"The Christmas of Great Joy" is the cantata which is being presented at Emanuel Lutheran church at 9:30 o'clock on Christmas morning by the senior and junior choirs of the church and school. H. W. Schield will direct and Miss Dora Marks will accompany the choir. Rehearsals will continue throughout the week. On Christmas afternoon children of the school will go caroling. This old time manner of carrying good cheer to the older people of the church gains favor year by year.

Midnight mass will be celebrated at both Most Sacred Blood church with Rev. Otto Kolbe and at St. John's Episcopal church. These services will be held on Christmas eve. St. John's mass will be read at 11:30 o'clock with children's choir and special music, and with a sermon by Rev. F. S. Dayton, "The Christ Child, The Love of God." This service will be repeated Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Putnam has been notified that the necessary change in the schedule for city mail delivery will be made to become effective Dec. 27. This change will provide for two complete deliveries each day and a third early morning delivery through the business district.

Under the new plan, the entire residential district will receive two deliveries daily whereas the old schedule provided for two daily deliveries for only about one-third of the residential district. Local subscribers hereafter will receive their weekly papers the day of publication if they are placed in crates for only about one-third of the effective same date, parcel post delivery by auto will be established to replace the old push cart method. Carrier Max Donner has been granted the use of a motor truck for this purpose, and a much quicker delivery of parcel post mail through out the city is assured.

The present delivery system was established about seven years ago when the principal mail was received on the south bound train arriving here at 4:40 a. m. Five years ago this train was discontinued, the principal mail now arriving over the G. B. & W. Ry. at 8:18 a. m.

In accordance with the new time schedule, carriers Arthur Laseh and George Meiklejohn will leave the postoffice at 8:25 a. m. and cover the business district. At 9:30 the second delivery will be made covering the business and residential district. The afternoon trip will cover both business and residential districts, the carriers leaving the post office at 1:45 p. m.

Carrier Max Donner will handle the parcel post delivery making his first trip at 7:45 a. m. and his second at 10:10 a. m. In addition Donner will serve the residential section now served by Meiklejohn.

TAX ROLL TURNED OVER TO BACHMAN FOR COLLECTION

E. L. Williams, City Clerk,
Certifies Taxes to Treasurer

Appleton's tax roll, totaling $1,213,593.78, has been turned over for collection to Fred E. Bachman, city treasurer, by E. L. Williams, city clerk. A temporary bond of $500,000, covering the tax collection period, was filed Friday morning by Mr. Bachman.

The opening day for collecting taxes has not been announced by Mr. Bachman. He has practically completed preparation of his books for the task, however, and an announcement from him regarding collection is expected in a day or two.

The city will have more than $110,000 less to finance general operation than last year, a comparison of the 1926 tax warrant with that of 1925 shows. After all other items are met with the exception of those necessary merely to operate the city, there will only be $253,853.04 available. Last year the amount for this purpose totaled $368,854.73.

According to the tax warrant presented to the city treasurer by the city clerk, state special charges total $12,242.01, county taxes amount to $305,328.50, and taxes for all city purposes are $956,514.56. Taxes from normal incomes are listed at $173,483.54, of which the city receives half of the amount collected.

The statement of taxes, prepared by the city clerk, shows how the money to be collected in taxes will be distributed. The division is as follows:

Union schools, $325,000; vocational school, $47,574.30 state and county, $231,920.49; city purposes, including $18,500 for the library and $15,000 for the parks, $234,502.54; county school tax, $25,108.00; special taxes, $64,169.76; waterworks collection, $160.26; normal income, $173,483.54; soldiers' bonus, $2,979.48; soldiers' education, $1,440.85; teachers retirement, $20,304.04. Total, $1,213,593.78.

AWARDED $3,600 IN SUIT AGAINST RAILROAD COMPANY

Recovers Damages from Northwestern Road for
Death of Albert Kressin

In a verdict in which it was found that employees of the defendant had been guilty of contributory negligence as well as the plaintiff, Margaret Kressin won an award of damages of $3,600 in her suit against the C. and N. W. railroad for the death in March, 1925, of Albert Kressin. The case was tried in circuit court before Judge Werner.

Mr. Kressin, according to the testimony, was mortally injured when crushed between a loading platform and a moving freight car at the Kimberly paper mill siding. He died several hours later after being removed to a hospital. Suit was brought for $12,000. Attorneys Frank Wheeler and Pelke represented the plaintiff. Five questions were propounded in the verdict written for the jury. The first dealt with whether or not the train crew was negligent. This the jury answered in the affirmative. The second asked whether or not this negligence was a proximate cause of death and was answered likewise. The third was left blank for the stipulation of just damages in the minds of the jury and brought forth the $3,600 award.

The fourth question asked the jury to decide whether or not in their belief Mr. Kressin had been negligent. This they answered yes, but in the fifth, which questioned as to whether or not the negligence of Kressin had place as part of the proximate cause of death, the jury decided it had not.

After three days of trial the case went to the jury at 12:45 Saturday afternoon and a verdict was signified at 4:45. Attorney Francis Wheeler handled the case for his firm.

Much of the plaintiff's argument was based on the contention that Mr. Kressin still had probably 10 years expectation of life when the accident happened. The defense took exception to this as Mr. Kressin was held 60 years of age when injured.

The amount sought was based on what the plaintiff's attorney contended Mr. Kressin would have been able to earn up to the time natural death might be expected.

APPROVE PLACE FOR MARQUETTE MEMORIAL

Milwaukee—(AP)—Faculty members of Marquette university who have been in Ludington, Mich., to view the site where Marquette students and alumni will erect a memorial to Father James Marquette, the Jesuit missionary and explorer, have returned to Milwaukee with a favorable report.

The memorial, a marble or granite shaft, will be erected on the spot along the shores of Lake Michigan where Father Marquette died, during one of his exploring journeys. The site is on a high mound overlooking the city of Ludington, and the memorial shaft will be visible from almost any location in the city.

A fund-raising campaign, which already has realized close to $1,000 will be resumed at Marquette shortly after the Christmas holidays. Only small contributions are asked, as it is the desire of the committee to have the memorial representative of as many students alumni and faculty members as possible.

Meet for Rehearsal

The weekly rehearsal of the Appleton Maennerchor at Gil Myse hall Thursday evening will be for men only. Prof. A. J. Theiss will be in charge. Plans for the Christmas party for members and friends on Sunday evening have been completed.

REPORT ROADS ARE IMPROVED SLIGHTLY

Roads at noon Friday were reported in slightly better condition than they have been for 10 days. The snow Saturday night and Sunday did not drift to any great extent and started to pack well or melt early Monday. In many instances the snow was an asset in so far as it filled bad ruts on heavy traffic highways.

McNARY BILL AGAIN FACES SIDETRACK HIS FRIENDS FEAR

Remains Only Drastic Piece of Such Legislation to Get Consideration

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, hailed by its sponsors as American agriculture's answer to the "McNary-Haugen" bill, is now in the hands of Congress early in the short session.

But only the most optimistic friends of the farmer predict that it will get anywhere.

Two factors might come to its aid. President Coolidge might demonstrate a change of heart in its favor, which hardly seems likely, and the serious cotton situation in the south may lead some southern senators to swing into line behind it.

But unless a definite change in sentiment is discovered, the bill may not even get on the floor. Pressure of time and the fact of appropriation bills and other legislation might cause leaders of the farm bloc to decide that it would be futile to trot the measure out for debate unless they could be assured of a change in the lineup of last year, when it was defeated.

OPINION VARIES
Opinion varies as to the bill's prospects among leading senators and congressmen. While one doubts whether it will come out of committee, another insists that it will be pushed in this session to the bitter end.

Other pet measures for relief have given way before it, however, and the McNary-Haugen bill remains the only drastic piece of such legislation which receives serious consideration.

Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, who is about to succeed Senator Norris of Nebraska as chairman of the senate agricultural committee, is the bill's author.

"It attempts to segregate the surplus of all basic agricultural commodities," McNary explained. "It would withhold the surplus from sale or sell it in foreign countries at the best available prices, charging the loss to all producers of that product."

Removal of that surplus, the supply would adjust itself to the demand and the farmer would get the full benefit of the tariff. This would increase the domestic price to the full extent of the tariff rate, which on wheat is 42 cents a bushel.

Instead of two boards, as I previously proposed, I now propose one board of twelve members to be appointed by the president from the twelve federal land bank districts. The $250,000,000 to be appropriated would not only be used by the board to segregate the surplus, but would be loaned to co-operative organizations on adequate security.

The government's $250,000,000 would be protected from loss by means of an equalization fee to be collected from the farmer when he sells his product and forwarded to the treasury.

"Taking wheat as an example, we produce 600,000,000 bushels a year, of which 600,000,000 is for domestic consumption. The remaining 150,000,000 bushels is for export.

"When we don't segregate it, the surplus makes the price for the whole crop. The farmer gets the world price and does not benefit by the tariff.

"If the farmer gains the tariff rate—42 cents on each bushel of wheat, the equalization fee he will pay to make up the loss incurred by sale of the surplus below domestic prices will amount to about six cents. Thus, the farmer's gain on wheat will be 36 cents a bushel.

"Probably with certain modifications, I will introduce this bill early in the session. We have the west, the middle west and the southwest with us and now we need some southern votes, which many people think we will get."
